The city that never sleeps

Travelling means finding yourself lost in the most amazing places of the world.

Travel has a different meaning to everyone, some do it to escape their everyday life, some do it to take the kids on vacation, some do it to because there are forced to, but not me. I travel to discover myself, my personality, new places and meet new people. The first time I travelled to New York I saw people with completely different lifestyles speaking different languages. It sparked a flame of curiosity in me about the world. To me New York with it's fast pace, the buzzing traffic, the hustle and bustle of the people, the 24 hour life, and the creative spirit makes it's one of the most vibrant places in the world. Times Square is just incredible. You really feel like you're in the capital of the world, it's busy, crowded but at the time so fascinating. It's a city that evolves day by day, you fell lost and alone scared of what you may face and is then that you realize that the only possible way to find yourself is to change and adapt to the place you are.

ABU DHABI

The house of luxury

Too often, Abu Dhabi is viewed as the shy, quiet little sister of bustling Dubai. Unlike Dubai, Abu Dhabi manages to retain a laid-back vibe, despite being a thriving metropolis. A visit to Abu Dhabi is no less than a visit to paradise, as you get to see exquisite Arabian culture combined with modern technology. It is known for its impressive and beautiful Sheikh Zayed Grand Mosque, one of the top ten architectural wonders in Abu Dhabi. Designed on a majestically beautiful landscape, The Sheikh Zayed Grand Mosque is a must visit place in Abu Dhabi. Not only it will surprise your mind with its architecture beauty, but it is also a sacred place that has a special meaning as it is seen as the building that united the world; since they had been using artisans and materials from countries such as Italy, Germany, Morocco, India, Turkey, Iran, China and Greece. The feelings that places like this makes you feel are incredible, it's exciting and mervellous but at the same time scary and misterious. Visiting Abu Dhabi you have a sensation that there is a much greater emphasis on religion, culture and tradition than in other UE cities. If your travel to Abu Dhabi you can not miss a tour of the Emirates Palace, a luxury five-star hotel and a phenomenal architectural entity that brings together many Islamic elements. Fun fact that the colors of the building imitates the distinctive shades of sands found in the Arabian desert.

HONG KONG

The gateway to the East

One of the greatest things about traveling the world is that you never experience the same thing twice. A city might have the same name, the same culture, or the same food, but there are no two locations on earth exactly the same. And that's where my love for Hong Kong begins. Hong Kong is regarded as one of the most popular tourism destinations in the world. It is part Chinese and part British. This unique combination of 5,000 years of Chinese tradition and 150 years of colonial influence shape the Hong Kong today. It is an enigmatic city where rich Chinese tradition mixes with modern western cultures, and a place where the modern and ancient live side by side. The city is known for its magnificent malls, serene beaches, breath taking mountains, noisy street and lots of exotic cuisine. It completely defines the modern city. The markets are dotted with both traditional and typical food blended with Indian, Malaysian and many others cultures.

The place attracts thousands of travellers worldwide to experience the vibrant life of Hong Kong. While several want to enjoy the dazzling skyline others indulge in its luxury shopping experiences. This city is just this: a symbol of multiculturalism and the benefits that we can acquire from them.

Travelling to these places to me means making friends with the locals and respecting their culture. It means spending time in dive bars and local restaurants because someone in passing recommended it to you. This is why I love Hong Kong.
